Actor Danny Glover has described Nkechi Taifa as "a brilliant lawyer and an extraordinary champion for justice."

Her reputation as a kick-ass commentator has been heralded from the streets to the suites and in media outlets from the Washington Post to the New York Daily News. She scrutinizes controversies from 'banned books' to 'reparations.' Taifa's take on today's hot button issues is fire; she makes uncomfortable conversations, comfortable.

BIO

Nkechi Taifa is an author, attorney, activist, and academic. She has testified before Congress, the D.C. City Council, the California Reparations Task Force, and several international bodies. She serves on the governing board of the Corrections Information Council, is Convener Emeritus of the Justice Roundtable coalition, and has served as Chair of the D.C. Commission on Human Rights.

A native Washingtonian, Taifa is the author of the best-selling memoir Black Power, Black Lawyer: My Audacious Quest for Justice—the story of a rebellious girl coming of age during the Black Power era and the social justice lawyer she becomes. She is also the author of Reparations on Fire: How and Why It's Spreading Across America; three children's books; and numerous scholarly works, including law review articles, book chapters, and white papers.

She is the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including the prestigious Brennan Award from the D.C. Bar Association.
